Last night about 10 o'clock, while Martin Cleary, of 131 Linden Avenue, was walking along the C., C., C. & I. track, he was struck and thrown saide by a north bound passenger train. The accident happened within a few yards of his house, and before the patrol wagon, which had been called, could arrive he had been carried home. Dr. Dunlap was called and on examination found that, saide from the shock, the man was unmjured. Cleary was down stairs and around again this morning.

A Poor, Miserable Son.

The following letter, written by a present inmate of our station-house, contains food for reflection on the part of some of the young people o the city. The letter will be delivered today:

DEAR MOTHER-For God's sake, get me DRAM MOTHER—FOR God's sake, get me out! You know the condition I am in. It will kull me. If you will do nothing for me send me my shoes. They are up stairs; my suspenders are in my trunk; also send me a vest. I am in a terrible shape. For God's sake, take pity on me! I will not touch another drop, so help me God! I have been fixed $3 and costs. My God, it will kill me! No clothes over me at night, and I am very sick. Your poor, miserable son. Your poor, miserable son, CHARLIE.

KLMER LOV ACQUITTED.

Last Scene in the Champiin Tragedy at Cincinnati-Remarkable and Affecting Occurrences in Court.

Dr. Elmer E. Loy was arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald in court at Cincinnati yesterday, to answer the charge of murder in the second degree. The court room was packed principally by a class of people who are never seen there, many being among the most prominent citizens of Cincinnati. The interest in the trial was of the intensest. The different members of the stricken family told their story of the terrible occurrences at the house on the fatal night, and finally the defendant took the stand, relating his version in a choking voice, breathless attention being paid to every word he uttered. The Time -Star reporter gives a graphic and comprehensive statement of the scene, as follows: In answer to queries put to him, he stated that he was born in Springfield, O., and began the practice of medicine here in October, 1879. His relations with his brother-in-law were of the best, a cross or angry word neve having passed between them, although he knew of Harry having made unkind remarks about him. On the fatal night he and Mrs Loy retired between 10 and 11 o'clock. Their room was on the third floor. He was awak-ened into a doze by the sound of the front door closing. He afterwards heard a door slam and a crash. His wife then said, "Harry is putting Mrs. Glenn out of the house."

He then heard the sound of another crash and the breaking of glass. He and his wife got up and looked out of the side window into the side yard, but saw nothing. He then heard Harry tell Mrs. Glenn to "get out or he'd put her out." He drew on his trousers and going to the closer, put on a cost that he wore at night when making calls, which, un-fortunately contained a revolver. He went downstairs and heard Mrs. Glenn cry for assistance and saw Harry standing over his mother. He seized him, struck him and threw him down, saying, "How dare you strike your mother?" Regular muster this evening of Mitchell

He then asked him if he would promise to behave if he let him up, but received for an answer, "You'd better kill me now or I'll kill you in the morning." He asked Mrs. Champlin if he should release Harry, when she said, "Don't rely to mutch on his promises." Harry also said, "There'll be a Templar funeral from this house to-morrow, and I ain't a Templar.

He also told him his promise to behave "didn't go." Anderson got bold of Harry then and took him to his room and was undressing him, when he made a dash down stairs. As he (Loy) passed along on his way to his room he heard Champlin and Ander son coming upstairs. Champlin said, "I'll cut her and him." He cried "Harry!" when the latter made a plunge at him, and as he closed he said, "I tired." He had no intention of killing and not even of wounding him, but merely to frighten him.

After the doctor had closed the whole audience was visibly affected, as the recital of the story was in such manner as to excite the sympathies of the most hard-hearted. essrs. Enoch T. Carson and Captain A Bowen took the stand and testified to the excellent character of the defendant, for whom they cherished the highest regard. Judge Firzgerald then stated that in a consultation between Mrs. Champlin and the prosecuting attorney, the former stated that she was of the belief that the doctor had saved her and Mrs. Glenn's life by interfering when he did.

He then preceded to pass upon the cases The following is an abstract of his decision.

The evident object of this examination is to prove a case of a lt-defense. The law is as old as self-defense itself, and it is one of the best principles of law. Mankind is provided with natural weapons of self-defense and not only that, but every living creature in the same manner has a weapon or weapon

"No man has a right to kill another man except in the protection of his own life, and in that case he is not only justified, but it is his duty to defend himself. I know of no before me. Sacred writ; ages of experience; the result of years of trial; the results of extended invalidation; the avidence of the wisset physicians, and the united wisdom of ancient and modern times, in civilized and barbarian climes, all go to prove that God has sent the herbs of the field for medicine unto man. Mineral substances cannot be taken into the fiulds and assimilated with the juices to carry off morbific humors, any more than a succulent vagatable can derive its sap from the polished surface of a marble slab. When this fact is understood, and size the physiological isot, that all disease, whatever their character, are at first merely an ascertion of poison in the fluids, is will be at once seen that to be efficacious, a remedy must search the very fountains from whence the fluids come, and clean out the specific virus, which is, demon clean out the specific virus, which is, demon like, concecting disease to vitiate and destroy the whole system.

This is the great secret, and the man who having this view, prepares a medicine which will purify the bissed and secretions, corrects the organs, and having found the occult germs of disease, will accomplish more than the whole college of physicians with the pharmacopoula at their back. The question for consideration is, has this been done, and if so, what is the result? We unhesitatingly say yes, and Mishler's Herb Bitters is the medicine which answers all these ends. It is essentially a herbal preparation, made by a combination of those natural remedies which Nature has spread abroad with such boundless profusion. From the cedron of Cenless profusion. From the cedron of Cen-America to the dandellon of our own fields, every plant has been tried and tasted, and the potent powers of all which could be anified and harmonised, have been used in preparing this most efficacious of all alterative and tonic remedies. It is no secret mess brought forwards a magic panacea, but a decoction of valuable herbs, every one hav-ing its name and description in the United States Dispensatory, and all combined by di-gestion and filtration in pure spirits, so classi-fied as to rid it of woody fibre and all sub-stances affecting its transparency, warranted to renew health, restore strength, and rid the system of all influences affecting the reguarity of its operations .- Democrat, Davenpor

I was cured of an obstinate and almost fatal indigestion—both stomach and liver being completely torpid. I was reduced to a living skeleton. Friends, tamily and physician had given me up. I was keeping the spark of life alive with a diet of raw eggs and milk. Now both stomach and liver are performing their functions. I have many triends in Western Ohio, N. E. lowa and S. W. Mo. who would like to know this."

The Honest Shaker, although he does not bosst of his purity, always makes goods that can be relied upon; for instance his Shaker Extract of Roots (Siegel's Syrup) is really a valuable article. It is not recommended as a case-all, but as a remady for one single disease, viz. Indigestion, in which disease it works like a charm. The Shaker Tar Capsules care Coughs.

Gentlemen—For years I have at times been trouveled from torpid liver, and also, more or less, from Kldney affection. Some time ago, when in the condition above mentioned, i procured a bottle of your Calculi Resolvent. At the time my urine was very red, and the sediment accumulated during the night had somewhat the appearance of brick dust. Before I had completed the bottle my liver seemed to set 'Le a new one, and the urine cleared up, the offensive smell left it, and now no deposit is found when it stands a few hours. I give this statement unasked, and, it worth anything in calling the attention of those similiarly afflicted, you may use it as you like. Yours truly,
